

Are you ready to expand your private practice?

Signs you're ready to expand

It's impossible to have them all, but if you feel that lots of these are you, then it sounds like you're ready to expand!

- Your solo practice is at capacity and you're sending clients elsewhere!
- You have time in your week to dedicate to building and expanding, or you're in a position to be able to free up some space in your life to do so.
- You're craving more freedom, and are willing to put in some extra work to make it to the freedom!
- You're ready for more income, specifically PASSIVE income. You're feeling burnt out with the 1:1 time-for-money model, and eager to enjoy the benefits of passive income streams.
- You're passionate about the work you do, want to help more people, and want to help more therapists help more clients!
- You've got something unique or in high demand in your market
- Your private practice is streamlined and doing well. You've got good retention and conversion with the clients you've worked with!
- You're a risk taker, or willing to take smart, calculated risks.
- You're interested in the business side of things and eager to learn more, and grow into a new role.
- You're okay leaning into the discomfort of investing more into your practice - more time, energy, money, and effort, in order to get to the end destination of more freedom, passive income, and value in your life.
- You're able to set boundaries, you have quality support systems, and have the self-care practices in place to take care of yourself during the process of growing!
- You're comfortable going at your own pace - you don't feel immense pressure to grow rapidly, you're comfortable doing this in your own timing :)
